

King County

---

PROCLAMATION

---

WHEREAS, Amy Snover has been a force of nature, leading innovative efforts to link climate impacts and adaptation science with on-the-ground needs of decision makers from all communities in order to help ensure a climate-resilient world for all; and

WHEREAS, Amy Snover has been the Director of the University of Washington Climate Impacts Group, University Director of the Department of the Interior Northwest Climate Adaptation Science Center, and Affiliate Associate Professor in the UW School of Marine and Environmental Affairs; and

WHEREAS, Amy Snover has been a trusted advisor to federal, state, and local decision makers on climate impacts science and adaptation practice for more than two decades; and

WHEREAS, Amy Snover has dedicated her career to building climate resilient communities, natural systems, and institutions across the Pacific Northwest, establishing a foundation for resilience now and in the decades to come; and

WHEREAS, Amy Snover has helped build a broader public awareness and understanding of why and how climate change matters to the Pacific Northwest through hundreds of public presentations and media interviews; and

WHEREAS, Amy Snover will be honored at a special event at the Arboretum on Tuesday, June 7, 2022, to celebrate her career.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Dow Constantine, Executive of King County, do hereby proclaim June 7, 2022 to be in King County. I encourage all residents to join me in honoring Amy for her many contributions to protect the environment, maintain the region's natural resources, ensure public safety, and protect our quality of life in the face of climate change.

Amy Snover Day

Dow Constantine
King County Executive